THE BONNETT HEARING.

It Was Closed Yesterday and Mrs. Massey Was Discharged.

OTHER DEFENDANTS HELD.

DEFENSE DID NOT PUT IN ANY EVIDENCE.

Exhaustive Arguments on a Motion to Discharge—Carter and Douglas Held in $5,000 Each, While Dr. McCoy's Bond Is Fixed at $3,000.

The second day of the preliminary hearing in the case of Sim Duggan, Frank Carter, Dr. William McCoy and Mrs. Massey, charged with the murder of Evelyn Bonnett, was a wearisome grind of argument and debate.

The court convened in the morning at 10 o'clock and the prosecution occupied the entire morning session in examining its witnesses, and in making its case out regularly by the defense at their testimony.

The first witness on the stand was Deputy Sheriff Fowler, of Provo, who was called to add to the testimony given the day before. He stated he had had some conversation with Dr. McCoy, and the doctor had told him Miss Bonnett was en route when he called to examine her, and that she had called to see him two or three times before he went out to see her.

Thomas Johns testified to having seen Duggan, Carter and Miss Bonnett together at the theatre in this city on the 11th of February.

CAME UP TO GET MARRIED.
Clement Bonnett, a brother of the deceased girl, testified that his sister left her home at Provo, Utah, on the 11th of February, and he saw her again the next day and asked him where he had left Evelyn, and he told him she was in Salt Lake, and that he never knew there was anything wrong with her, and that he had come to Salt Lake to get married to her.

David Bonnett merely corroborated Clement Bonnett's testimony.

At the conclusion of her testimony, Attorney King and Gash engaged in a wordy war in regard to admitting this testimony. The discussion waxed warm and finally Judge Harvey interposed and announced that he had the floor and ended the dispute.

The prosecution asked to have Maud Bonnett, sister of the deceased, called. They wished to ask her one question: an officer was sent for her, and in a short time she appeared with the girl. Attorney Gash objected to her being called, but what had been her mother's occupation when they lived in Provo, but the testimony was not material.

William O'Neil was recalled, but he was not completely befuddled in a fog of technicalities, and he gave satisfactory answers, although he evidently tried to tell the truth in his own way. Judge Harvey adjourned court until 2 p. m.

AFTERNOON SESSION.
Judge Lochrie set the pace when the court opened by asking that the charge be read. Mrs. Massey was dismissed, because, he said, she was not a witness produced by the prosecution which proved she had been guilty of the crime charged against her. He further stated that the girl and Mrs. Massey were acquaintances, and Miss Bonnett had come to her house without her knowledge and remained there.

Judge King interposed here to state that he wished to have a second witness called. Mrs. Massey was guilty of any complicity in performing the act which resulted in Miss Bonnett's death. Judge King said: "I cannot see anything in this case that would lead me to believe that she had been in the commission of the crime as it had been demonstrated."

ATTORNEY GASH OPPOSES.
Attorney Gash entered into a long argument against the granting of his motion, stating that his opinion, which was as much complicated as any of the defendants, that everything tended to show that the arrangement made by Duggan and Carter with Mrs. Massey to convey Miss Bonnett to her home, and the abortion performed, which he said was done, but he might not be as sure of the others, but her complicity in the operation was unquestioned in his opinion, and she should be held to answer to the district court. He said the abortion was done, and was a natural cause, and could not have been performed by the girl upon herself, but was done by instruments by force and by other persons.

MRS. MASSEY DISCHARGED.
At this juncture, Judge Harvey took a recess to enable him to arrive at a decision on the motion. His conclusion, Judge Harvey said: "If there was a crime committed, the parties ought to be punished. I do not know what science find enough evidence to hold this woman, so I will grant the motion for her discharge."

The long strain of anxiety which Mrs. Massey had undergone since her incarceration, caused her to break into a tearful and grateful acknowledgment, and soon recovering her composure she smiled her thanks to the judge and her attorney.
